

Job Opportunities

This section advertises specific jobs and leadership positions that open up to support the growth and work of S.O.U.L, and specifically, the global headquarters. For now, all jobs will have to be unpaid, or volunteer positions. We're not talking here about the many ways in which people can volunteer for different projects and activities. Only specific leadership or coordinator positions, demanding specific skills and prior experience are listed here. Even though these positions remain unpaid until we get some growth under our belt, we will screen applicants as carefully, as if they were highly paid.

1: Education

Database Project Coordinator.

In addition to being fully grounded in the basic S.O.U.L philosophy, the ideal applicant must be able to delegate responsibility to many other volunteers, and to organize and sub-divide the overall research into different categories. The candidate ideally has a background in education, and has demonstrated creativity in education or a related field.

2: Community Development Database Coordinator. Like the previous position, this one also requires a total commitment to the S.O.U.L philosophy, an ability to delegate responsibility, and to lead numerous volunteers. The candidate should have Community organizing experience, and an excellent grasp of good business practice and business planning.

3: Conflict Resolution Database Coordinator. Since many parts of the world are embroiled in bloody conflicts that may even threaten world peace, it is necessary for us to become active right away, both in research and in mediation itself. Perhaps, after initial research, we can invite someone who is already successful and knowledgeable at this work to head this project. If anyone is connected with such an individual, like President Jimmy Carter, for example, he or she is urged to bring it to the attention of such a potential candidate. In the meantime, we will screen and appoint a research coordinator from the best available candidates.
